Alice still sold as a favorite for the second heat and her backers placed thousands of dollars on her. She won the heat classify in 2:495, which raised the expectations of her backers to such a height that they began offering odds of five to one, and had but few takers, but they dropped when at the end of the third heat. Pinto was a safe winner, having gone around the track without a skip in 2:42.

Mutuals on this heat paid $135, but the backers of Alice had scared everybody from the box and there were but four mutuals to pay.

Pinto having won two heats was a favorite with with some but the majority still backed Alice heavily. The fourth heat was a pretty race from the one-fourth pole to the wire, Pinto pacing and Alice trotation ends of the wire, Pinto pacing and Alice trotation ends and neck, but just before the wire was reached Alice broke and the spotted norse went under an easy winner in 2.2564.
